

School Bonds Are Held Valid

A temporary injunction to prevent the Mt. Sterling board of education issuing $30,000 worth of school improvement bonds was denied to H. G. Hoffman Tuesday by the court of appeals. Judge Settle handed down the decision, in which the whole court concurred.

Mr. Hoffman had sued Charles D. Grubbs, president of the school board and members of the board to prevent issuance of the bonds. The circuit court denied the injunction and the appellate court was asked to act. Mr. Hoffman claimed the law had not been complied with.

The decision removes all doubt as to the legality of the bonds, and the contract for the new building will doubtless be let at once, so as to be ready for the fall term.

SELECT HEADQUARTERS

Sir Knights S. S. Pinney, S. R. Admson and C. W. Kirkpatrick were in Maysville last week where they went as a committee from Montgomery Commandery, No. 5, to select the headquarters for the coming conclave. After looking over the various locations the committee selected the home of Mrs. William D. Cochran as the headquarters for the local commandery. It is one of the most delightful places in Maysville and the choice was a wise one. Sir Knight S. D. Gay is drilling his men preparing them for the big parade at Maysville on Wednesday, May 18. From the cards turned in to the local commandery it is thought that 75 local Knights and about 40 ladies will attend the conclave.

The number present was small, but every man was deeply in earnest about Mt. Sterling's interests.

Reference was made to resultant effort of organization—they are many—after which the following committees were appointed:

Committee on nomination of officers of this body: W. T. Tyler, Percy D. Bryan, Oldham Greene; committee on style: Hoffman Wood, Joe Keller, Tom Jones; road committee: L. T. Chiles, who will associate with him members of his own choosing who will take up the matter of connecting Powell county at Stanton with a road leading from the main hard-surfaced line from Jeffersonville.

These committees will report at the next regular meeting of the organization.

Louisville Male High Plays Here Saturday

The strong base ball team of the Louisville Male High School will cross bats with the local High School at Fair Grounds park Saturday afternoon, and one of the fastest games of the season is looked forward to. The local boys, since their victory over the Lexington Blue Devils of last week, feel that they have one of the best high school teams in the state and are certain to give the Louisville lads a stiff argument. The boys are practicing hard for this game and feel confident of victory. Davis will be in the box for the locals and the boys will all be on edge for this exhibition. This will be the most expensive game staged here this season and it is hoped a large crowd will be on hand to encourage the boys on to victory.

INDEPENDENT PRESS IS AGAINST TARIFF BILL

Here are the views of independent papers on the senate tariff bill:

Kansas City Star: "The bill is a serious economic mistake, the immediate effect of which will be to increase the cost of living."

Springfield (Miss.) Republican: "It is open to severe attack by those who believe that the price of commodities should not be raised."

Chicago Daily News: "Even before the bill is passed the consumer is made to see one of the blessings of the new 'strictly American' tariff in the announcement by the head of the Woolen Trust that cloth will cost from ten to forty-five cents more at wholesale."

Christian Science Monitor: Discussing the glove schedule of the bill this non-partisan paper says: "The people of the United States need enlarged foreign markets, but cannot expect to sell to countries whose goods they exclude by such prohibitive duties as that proposed on gloves. The American woman, now a voter, will not willingly submit to tariff taxes that compel her to pay much higher prices for less desirable articles. When she is told that increased prices are due to high rates, she will be likely to use her ballot against the members of congress responsible for the added cost of what she buys."

St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch: "What of the great unregarded masses of consumers?"

RUGS AND CARPETS

We are anxious to serve. We are prepared to do work and in a satisfactory way as any other concern can, but we should have time to carry carpets and rugs through the many distinct processes. This requires time, but when it is accomplished the carpets are in color and cleanliness as good and slightly as new. We are wanting our trade to hurry their articles to us or to notify us that we may send a truck and meet their demands. This work is heavy at this season and to get quick service we must have time. We don't have to tell the quality of our work now, for we have proved that we are experts in cleaning rugs and carpets. Call 15—Dixie Carpet Cleaning Company.

27 Horses Burn At Lexington Track

Twenty-seven thoroughbred race horses, owned by former United States Senator Johnson M. Camden and J. Cal Milam, perished Tuesday night at 8 o'clock when fire, caused by lightning, destroyed the Milam stable at the Kentucky Jockey Club's Lexington track.

The horses lost were valued roughly at between $300,000 and $500,000, with little insurance. The building was valued at approximately $15,000.

Among the horses burned to death in the flaming stable were Senator Camden's Rangoon and Daredevil, both notable sprinters, now four years old, which had not started this year, and his Bettina, a four-year-old mare by Light Brigade—Ectarina, which was entered in the Camden Handicap Wednesday.

Mr. Milam's Little Sally, a valuable two-year-old filly which ran on Tuesday, was lost. Senator Camden's two-year-olds, principally the get of Peter Quince and Light Brigade, and valuable two-year-old owned by Mr. Milam, also perished. Mr. Milam trained all the horses of Senator Camden in addition to those he owned.

Mojave, considered one of the best two-year-olds on the west, which was the favorite in the Idle Hour stakes Tuesday and ran second to Prince K., escaped, but was severely burned and may not be fit for racing. Two fillies by Peter Quince, one out of Stick Pin and the other out of Eden Hall, were rescued. Louis Adair, an older racer, also was saved.

Golden Apple, a colt by Light Brigade—Atlanta, owned by Senator Camden, which had started in the Lexington meeting, was reported to have escaped and run away.

Lightning struck the building shortly after 8 o'clock. The bolt was seen by a negro nightwatchman employed by Mr. Milam. The nightwatchman was sitting on the porch of the jockeys' house, near the horse barn, and saw the bolt flash, during the electrical shower at that hour, and the stable immediately burst into flames.

The nightwatchman gave an alarm and several employees of the stables at the course gave aid.

Track Superintendent J. M. Keegan heard the cries of "fire" and took charge.

THE ONLY SALVATION

It was a shameful day for Kentucky yet a sadder one for Breathitt county when in the Clayhole precinct on election day four men were shot to death and thirteen wounded and over the bodies of the dead and while the cries of the wounded yet were heard, men took poll books from the election booth, mutilated them and threw them into the turbulent waters of Troublesome creek.

Yet can Lexington, where a man is fatally shot in the postoffice lobby, point a finger of scorn toward "Bloody" Breathitt?

Can Louisville, where violence was resorted to on election day not only by civilians but by officers wearing the uniforms of the law they had sworn to protect, say aught?

Can the south central part of Kentucky, where but Tuesday after severing the head of her 12-year-old daughter with a butcher knife and hurling her six-year-old son into a barrel filled with rainwater, a woman ran her head into the sharp edge of a hatchet, shudder at the sins of a far county?

Can the people of the valleys of The Purchase claim to surpass those of the mountains?

The Herald publishes a letter from a citizen of Jackson, born and reared in Breathitt county. He recounts the outrage of election day in Breathitt county. He admits all that is charged in that affair.

There is no hope for Kentucky so long as one community points to another and says, "I am no worse than you."

The Breathitt county man in his letter gives the proper view. Let all confess their guilt, let there be no effort to hide but the effort of every righteous man to end the lawlessness which has been rampant.

The situation in Breathitt county calls for action by the courts. If nothing is done the stamp of public approval seems to be placed upon a crime which no man secretly can condone.

Nothing said or done on the outside can cleanse Breathitt county. The action must come from within.

From men who have the honesty and courage to look such affairs squarely in the face, to take their stand against outlawry which would make the ballot box a mockery and a human life cheap, use come the repentance and salvation not only of Breathitt county, but of all Kentucky.—Lexington Herald.

Representative Underhill, of Massachusetts, says some of his colleagues are so ignorant they think Easter Sunday is Billy Sunday's sister, and that Yom Kippur is a kind of herring.

A big percentage of difficulties of humanity are to be solved only by good management.

WHAT THINK YE?

Just an evening passed in conversation with a trio of thinking men, the past was being graphically reviewed. We had traversed the 'way-back past' when the agriculturist used the wooden plow and the motor-power was the ox. The writer was the only one of the four who could relate this history from personal knowledge. From one era to another we traversed, passing in mind quick flight of the buggy with steel tires, the rubber tires, the automobile, the airplane, telegraphy, telephone, dictaphone, radiophone, when one of the gathering said with emphasis, "Gentlemen, the men of research will keep on until one of these days some crank will touch a button, as it were, and with a 'zit!' the whole of creation will go out as with a flash, and where will we be?" Man is getting mighty smart about many things, but of that hour and that day no man knows. Scientists, historians, theologians and all of the world's greatest may come and go, the evolutionists all having their days, but when He who created commands, the world and all she possesses will stand still. What think ye?

IS MT. STERLING GROWING? IS SHE DESTINED TO BE A GREAT CITY?

These questions can be easily answered in two words, pull together and never carry that veritable hammer. Chicago was once a place with a cabin, but today her population passes into hundreds of thousands, and beyond a million. Why? Did her population knock? Nay, verily, they got hold of one end of the line and heaved together. Likewise, Atlanta and others of our greatest populated cities—they pulled together. There was a time when Lexington supplied Cincinnati; Lexington knocked, she slept, and today there is a reverse aspect when we realize the reverse with Cincinnati supplying Lexington. Lexington lost her opportunity, and not until there had been several funerals did she realize her possibilities.

Mt. Sterling can become a great city. It will require shoulders to the wheel and a pull all together and with hammers consigned to the junk pile.

A DEGREE MORE

Tom Underwood, in the Hopkinsville New Era, asks this question, "If an editor on a diet of honey can sting like the devil, what would he do if fed on tobasco sauce?"
Old Nic-o-tine.

This would be a nicer world if we were as regular in leaving unpaid the things we should not have said as we are in leaving undone the things we should have done.

It's man's faith in mankind that makes huncos steerers prosperous.

You may have noticed that a man isn't particular in his language when he is talking to some man he knows he can lick.

KENTUCKY BAPTISTS

LEAD FUND DRIVE

Kentucky Baptists led all states in the Southern Baptist Convention in the raising of this year's quotas of the $75,000,000 Campaign of the convention.

Kentucky came within $180,000 of reaching its entire third year subscription pledge by receiving a total of $1,119,963.15 before convention books were closed May 1. Since that time more than $50,000 in cash has been received at state headquarters, the Rev. C. M. Thompson, corresponding secretary of the Baptist State Mission Board, has announced.

Of the fifteen states composing the Southern Baptist Convention, the state of Texas stood second to Kentucky in the amount raised, which was said to be approximately $1,075,000. Other states ranking high are Georgia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

With the closing of the books May 1 Kentucky came within $111,000 of raising its first three years' quota of $3,900,000. The $50,000 which came in since at state headquarters cannot be credited to this year's quota, Dr. Thompson said, must be added to the fourth year.

Organization work for the 1923 fiscal year of the campaign in Kentucky is being done now, he said, and active work on the campaign will begin June 1.

"No let-up will be seen from then on," Dr. Thompson said, "until Kentucky Baptists reach the fourth year goal of $1,300,000." He predicted that this goal not only would be reached, but the extra sums will be turned in which will give a complete paid up basis for the first four campaign years as far as the denomination in the state is concerned.

The money is used in an educational and missionary program of the Southern Convention. The campaign was begun on a five-year basis.

In contributions to foreign missionary work Kentucky also was first in the list of states in the Southern Convention, according to word received at state headquarters from the Rev. J. F. Love, secretary of foreign missions for the convention at Richmond, Va. The state's total in this was $273,814.77, while that for the convention was $1,759,478.82.

NOVEL MEANS USED TO SHOW UP-TO-DATE POULTRY HOUSES

Model poultry houses on court house squares in a new means of demonstrating improved poultry practices. These houses are built according to blue prints furnished by extension workers employed by the United States Department of Agriculture and Mechanical College of Texas. They are designed to be ideal for farm use, and are furnished with the proper equipment. The houses are built economically so that farmers may copy them, and are located on court house squares where county demonstration agents usually have their offices and many farmers come every Saturday.

The story of the Franklin county house is typical of others. The agent constructed the house and equipped it with a dry mash hopper and drinking fountain. He stocked it with eight hens selected on the basis of egg production. The chamber of commerce furnished the money, and a lumber company gave the material. It was easy to get a hen from each of four barred-rock breeders and one from each of four white leghorn breeders for an egg-laying contest, which attracted much attention. After the hens had become accustomed to their new home a record of the eggs laid by each breed and the amount of food consumed each month was kept and reported in the local papers.

Hundreds of persons visited the house last year. Some came to study the house, others the drinking fountain and dry mash hopper, as well as to see the hens. The house has been a great factor in determining the plans for poultry houses all over the country.

One of the model poultry houses located on court house squares is to remain until it is awarded to the best poultry club member this fall.

PINE NEEDLE BASKETS BRING GOOD INCOME TO CLUB GIRL

How to use spare time profitably might be told by a young Mississippi girl, Nonie Talbert, whose home is some six miles from the town of Meridian. Besides belonging to a canning club, a poultry club, and a dairy club at the same time, Nonie earns money to pay for her own clothes, books and high school tuition, although she leaves home before six in the morning to attend school and returns after six at night. She is fifteen, and the eldest of seven children. Her mother and the other children do farm work, while the father works in the shops at Meridian. Three years ago, about the time Nonie first went into club work, she also started going to high school in Meridian. She has to go to and from town with her father every day. The home demonstration agent suggested that the time Nonie had to wait before and after school might be spent in the extension office in the court house. For the past three years Nonie has been doing this. She studies her lessons first and then puts her spare time to good use making pine needle baskets, an art learned at the state short course in 1919.

During the past nine months Nonie has made and sold $32 worth of baskets. At the Meridian fair she won first and second prizes on her basket exhibit. At the Jackson state fair she won second prize, and at the art exhibit of the state federated clubs held at Jackson, she won second place.

All Nonie's club activities must be carried on either before six in the morning or after six at night. This means caring for her garden, doing her canning, caring for her poultry and calf when the average girl of fifteen would consider herself entitled to a little recreation.

While the department of agriculture does not want to encourage club members to carry on their work under difficulties similar to those encountered by this Mississippi girl, it is interesting to note that club work arouses ambition which often enables girls and boys to accomplish what is seemingly impossible.

LASKER'S LOSSES GOVERNED BY LENGTH OF THE MONTH

For March Mr. Lasker's shipping board operations showed a loss of $3,704,155.22. He ingeniously explains that the increased loss is due to the fact that March is a longer month than February.

New 1922 Egg Candling Law

AN ACT to promote the production of better eggs in Kentucky by regulating the traffic in eggs to prevent fraud and misrepresentation in dealing in eggs, to prevent the sale of eggs unfit for human food, and to fix penalties for violation of the provisions thereof.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

§ 1. No person, firm or corporation engaged in the buying and selling of eggs shall sell, offer or expose for sale, or traffic in, any eggs unfit for human food, unless the same is broken in shell and denatured so that it cannot be used for human food. For the purpose of this Act, an egg shall be deemed unfit for human food if it be added or moldy, has a black rot, a white rot, or a blood ring, or if it has an adherent yolk or a bloody or green white; or if it be incubated beyond the blood ring stage; or if it be composed in whole or in part of a filthy decomposed or putrid substance.

§ 2. That between May 15 of each year and January 15 of the following year no person, firm or corporation engaged in the buying and selling of eggs, shall buy or sell eggs without candling them, and no payment either in cash or merchandise shall be made for those unfit for food. No person, firm or corporation shall, in buying or selling eggs, take or give a greater or less dockage for eggs unfit for food as defined in section one of this Act than the actual dockage which has been determined by the careful candling of the eggs so purchased or sold.

§ 3. The term "candling" as used herein shall be construed to mean the careful examination of the whole egg; in a partially dark room or place suitable for the purpose. The apparatus and method employed, to be such as shall be approved by the State Board of Health.

§ 4. Any person, firm or corporation failing to comply with the requirements of or violating any of the provisions of this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be fined not less than $10.00 nor more than $50.00 for each offense.

§ 5. That all acts or laws and parts of acts or laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act be and are hereby repealed. (59-2t)

RADIO NEWS DISSEMINATED BY CLUB BOYS AND GIRLS

"Listening in" on a country telephone may have its thrills, but members of boys' and girls' clubs who "listen in" on the conversation of the world with their radio receiving sets have an interest which comes not from neighborhood gossip, but from getting the morning report of the markets, the weather forecast and crop estimates for all parts of the country.

In a number of states club members within a receiving distance of broadcasting stations located at the state college of agriculture or elsewhere are receiving information that takes some of the risks out of business of farming. They post this information in conspicuous places so that neighbors may make use of it. The work demonstrates the usefulness of the radio as a piece of farm equipment.

Counties in New Jersey, Montana and Colorado have clubs that received wireless messages last season. In Kentucky, Nebraska and several other states organization is under way. The expansion of the radio has been limited because of lack of simple printed instructions, but the recent distribution of circulars by the United States department of agriculture on the making of receiving sets has been helpful to the boys and girls.

Through members of pig, dairy, corn and other clubs who are receiving daily market information and the estimated crop production, the entire family and the community as well may be benefited.

STABLE BOY TO STATESMAN

Englishman Born in Humble Circumstances Made Place for Himself Among the Great.

Perhaps no man of modern times has passed a more varied and romantic life than Thomas Ward, who commenced life as a stable boy and who later became famous as a statesman, the intimate of kings and the player of a prominent role at the court of Parma.

Ward, who was born at Yorkshire, Eng., in 1810, entered the service of Prince Lichtenstein of Hungary at an early age, and soon made a name for himself as a jockey in Vienna. In 1846 he was made master of the horse at the court of the duke of Lucca, proving his efficiency by reducing expenses more than 50 per cent—because of which proof of his ability he was sent to Florence on a confidential mission of the highest importance in 1848. But shortly afterward the duke's rule was terminated by a revolution, and Ward became an active agent of Austria, recovering the hereditary estates of Parma and Placentia. As a reward, he was made prime minister and sent as an envoy, first to Vienna and later to St. Petersburg. After the assassination of the youthful Charles III, whom the baron had pinned upon the throne of Parma, Ward retired from public life and took to agricultural pursuits in Austria.

When he died, carrying with him many secrets connected with the leading families of Europe, this man who started as a stable boy bore no less than nineteen distinguished titles, among them several conferred by the reigning houses of Austria, Germany and Russia.

NOT VERY FAR FROM CORRECT

Marjorie's "Theme" Short and to the Point—Had at Least the Merit of Conciseness.

The teacher had assigned a task to the children that was causing them considerable trouble. They were to write a short theme on "What Makes Great Cities," having 15 minutes to devote to the subject. Marjorie sat chewing the end of her pencil, five minutes passed, and still she had not written a word. Then minutes went by and Marjorie's paper was still a blank. Twelve minutes. Fourteen.

"Only one minute more, children," the teacher announced. "Fold your papers lengthwise and write your name and the subject on the outside."

All at once Marjorie came to action. She wrote frantically and when the final minute was up she handed her paper in with the rest, correctly folded and labeled.

Curiosity got the better of the teacher, and at the first opportunity she slipped Marjorie's paper out of the pile on her desk.

"Marjorie Jones," was written boldly on the outside. "Subject—What Makes Great Cities."

The teacher opened the paper and found therein one written word—covering the subject more or less adequately. That word was:

"People."

Trees of Great Age.

The lime tree at Morat, planted at Fribourg on the day of the celebrated battle, is one of the oldest trees in Europe. This glorious event in the history of Switzerland, having occurred in 1475, the venerated tree, which is encircled by a colonnade and of which the aged branches are upheld by a framework of wood, must be almost 450 years old.

The fir attains a still greater age. In some of the most ancient forests of Germany, situated on the summit of the Wurzelburg in Thuringia, as many as 700 annual layers have been counted on some of the trees cut down there.

The olive tree, so revered in ancient Greece and which inspired such beautiful verses in the tragedy of Oedipus by Sophocles, reached a much greater age according to the ancient myth. Pliny even asserts that in his time the celebrated olive tree which Minerva caused to spring from the ground at the time of the foundation of the city of Cecrops was still to be seen in the citadel of Athens.

Chinese Idea of Assassination.

The Chinese have peculiar notions concerning assassination. The man who killed the German minister, von Kettler, during the Boxer outbreak, is looked on by the Chinese as a national martyr. The commemorative arch which the Germans forced on the Chinese as a monument of their disgrace for murdering the representative of a foreign power, was understood by the people at large to be a lasting memorial to the man who had committed the deed.

When the arch was removed by the Chinese after they declared war on Germany, the people were of the opinion that either he or one of his family had committed some crime of such a nature that the honor that had been conferred on him had been withdrawn by the government.

Earth's Quiet Spots.

Arid deserts occur in all of the great land divisions and reach an enormous extent in Africa, Asia and Australia. The most pronounced desert conditions of South America are found on the western slopes and benches of the Andes. One locality that of Copalpo, has an average precipitation of 0.4 inches a year, and so far as known is the driest spot on the earth's surface.—New York Herald.

LIVE THOUSANDS OF YEARS

Idea That Some Trees Are Immortal Has Been Gravely Assorted by Many Naturalists.

The idea of immortality in trees is often met with in the works of the ancients, observes a writer in the New York Sun. The historian, Josephus, in his "Jewish War," relates that in his day there was near the city of Elbron a turpentine tree which was as old as the days of Adam.

It was reserved for modern naturalists to show that these assertions, however extraordinary they may appear, are still correct, and that many of our trees in some sort indestructible may have seen the final scene of creation and, after having the action of so many ages, are still upright and living to this day.

It is now over a hundred years since Adanson, by ingenious calculations, showed the learned that such ideas, though extraordinary, are yet facts of the most scrupulous exactitude. This naturalist by a happy chance found in the interior of the trunk of the baobab in one of the Cape Verde islands an inscription which had been traced on it by the English 300 years previously. Starting from this point and comparing the diameters of the stems of many of these bulky trees, the French savant succeeded in proving that the most vigorous of these primitive inhabitants of the African forests might be at least 5,000 years old.

TRULY WERE GOLDEN CHIMES

Bells Cast in Ancient Mexican Village Composed in Large Part of Precious Metals.

In the Mexican state of Sonora, at the headwaters of the Rio Mayo, is the ancient mining village of Tyopa, which in early days was famous for the sweet-toned bells cast there from copper procured in the neighborhood.

It was from Tyopa that chimes of bells were obtained for many missions on the Pacific coast, and from the same source came bells that were hauled by ox teams across the desert to mission settlements in Arizona and New Mexico. There was one such settlement at Sitka, Alaska, established by Franciscan monks, which got its chime of bells from Tyopa.

Some of these bells are still in existence, their tones as sweet as ever. Many of them have been melted in latter days for the gold and silver they contained. The sweetness of their music, in fact, was due to the circumstance that about 25 per cent of the crudely refined copper from which they were cast was silver and gold.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Puss Puts Two and Two Together.

This account of a cat's remarkable display of reasoning was recently given to a friend of the Companion by a minister whose word, one correspondent remarks, is of course not to be questioned.

When Mr. and Mrs. M— were about to move to California they left their cat with some friends who were living in a suburb perhaps two miles from the eastern side of their home city. After an absence of 18 months they returned and spent two weeks with their friends. Though the cat remembered them, it appeared to be content with its owners; so when Mr. and Mrs. M— went to live in a new house in the northern part of the city they left the cat behind. A few days later it was missing from its home in the suburb for the first time since it had gone there to live; and three days later friends notified Mrs. M— that her cat was at her first home in the extreme western part of the city.

Apparently puss had reasoned that its former owners had returned to their old home; so it hastened there, traveling either through or round a busy city a distance of fully three miles. Mrs. M— went and got the cat at once and carried it to the new home, where it now lives contented.—Youth's Companion.

Didn't Get the Job.

A get-rich-quick lump of physical energy in the form of an out-of-work commercial traveler applied to the manager of a firm, explaining that, once on the job, he could guarantee such a flow of orders that the staff would be unable to cope with them.

The manager knew his business, and said: "Well, young fellow, I'd like to see if you could do something. I can't. Industry is in a topsy-turvy muddle, and you can't get order out of chaos."

The applicant squared his shoulders and declared as he looked up a telephone directory: "Let me do it. I haven't the pleasure of knowing Mr. Kaysons, but I'll get an order out of him somehow."

He didn't get the job, though.—London Answers.

British Courts of Ancient Origin.

Among the courts of ancient origin in Great Britain, a most interesting one still exists at Bristol, the last one remaining of the Pied Poudre courts which were established more than 700 years ago at places where large fairs were held, and attended by foreigners. The courts were provided, especially if the fair was at a seaport town, to deal with differences of opinion which were likely to arise between people who could not understand each other's speech. They were called Courts of Pied Poudre or Dusty Feet, from the dusty feet of the traveling bachelors and peddlers whom it was intended to help.

In time the Pied Poudre became Pye Powder court.

SURVEYS OF ROAD BUILDING MATERIALS LESSEN COSTS

Road material surveys now being made in several states will give contractors a more definite basis for bidding on road work and result in cheaper costs of construction, says the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture.

In making these surveys, supplies of stone, gravel, sand, slag and other materials are located, samples tested and information secured as to accessibility, freight rates and other factors. This information is of permanent value as supplies are rarely exhausted. By furnishing a contractor information as to the location of satisfactory materials one element of risk is removed, and some of the states report that they have definite proof that such service has resulted in decreased bids.

The bureau of public roads in the course of its operations has tested some 9,000 samples of rock, sand, gravel and slag, and reports are now available giving the location from which the sample was taken together with results of tests. There are now 63 laboratories engaged in testing road materials, and data is being rapidly accumulated even in states that are not at this time making an intensive survey.

MOLESKINS VALUABLE AS FUR WHEN SOLD THROUGH POOLS

Moleskins, which brought little or nothing in the ordinary fur markets, have been successfully pooled and sold in Washington and Oregon through farm bureau organizations. Boys and girls in many communities have formed clubs for trapping the moles. Through the co-operative work of the extension agents and representatives of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, they have been taught approved methods of trapping and skinning the moles.

Two hundred and twenty mole pelts were sold in Benton county, Oregon, for boy and girl trappers. Linn county, Oregon, reports three communities which offered 10 cents each for moles and pocket gophers and an additional prize for the three children killing the most pests. One community reports 83 moles killed in this way.

Tillamook county Oregon, was divided into four districts and $50 purses were allotted to each district for first, second and third prizes. The county paid a five-cent bounty on both moles and pocket gophers. The moleskins were stored in the county agent's office until a salable amount was collected. They were then sold to the highest bidder. All money received for the skins was returned to the trappers.

REPUBLICANS TO AID KENDRICK

Senator LaFollette, Republican, of Wisconsin, is backing up Senator Kendrick, Democrat, of Wyoming, who brought to light the scandal of leasing the naval oil reserves to the Standard oil subsidiaries, by a resolution directing the secretary of the interior to send to the senate a list of all oil leases in the California and Wyoming naval oil reserves, but according to a reliable Republican paper Senators Smoot and Curtis have notified Senator LaFollette that his resolution will not be allowed to pass if they can prevent it.

Secretary Fall in a statement issued by the interior department officials, undertook to justify these leases by saying that naval oil reserve territories had been tapped by private interests under the previous administration. This aroused former Secretary of the Navy Daniels, who not only showed that the oil reserves had not been tapped, but who called up it is certain to receive the support of other Republican senators and when the facts are known there is every indication that the turning over of these oil lands reserved for the oil-burning ships of the navy will prove to be one of the most odorous scandals that follow the alliance of the big interests with reactionary politics.

TEACHING CHILDREN TO APPRECIATE BLESSINGS

Mothers often get discouraged because the children seem thankless and unappreciative of their blessings, when with a little thought and effort on the mother's part she could train them to a better sense of appreciation.

"I bought some lead pencils when I was down town today, so they would be on hand, and I hope I will not hear any more about lead pencils when you are starting to school at the last minute."

Will Johnnie appreciate one of those pencils when he takes it from the shelf, do you think? He certainly will not. He will grab one and off with it without even a thought of thanks, to say nothing of voicing his appreciation.

"Here's your collection money all ready for you," says mother when the children are scurrying off to Sunday School. Now not for anything would the tots go without their pennies, for the collection is an event in the primary grades. But when mother hands it out this way they take it as a matter of course and not as one of the blessings for which they should say "thank you."

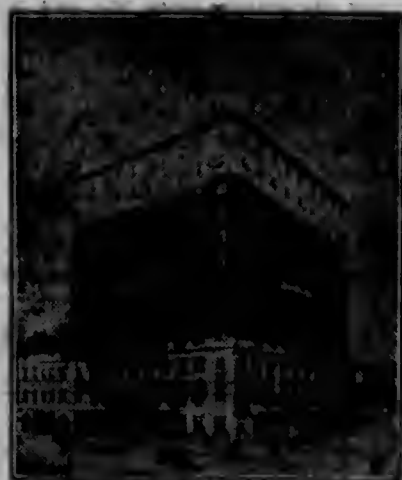

Now it would be splendid discipline to let the children ask for a few things once in a while. This gives them a sense of obligation to mother because she has done a favor, and nearly always a well-mannered child will say "thank you" for something which he himself has requested. Don't feel, mothers, as if you were shirking your duty if you make Mary ask you to sew on a button or mend the pocket of her sweater. She will be impressed with what the little task means if she has to wait for you to get your thimble and thread and button, or yarn. If she sits and watches you for the ten minutes that this duty requires she will say "thank you." But if the clothes are mended and tucked away in her bureau or closet always, she will take the blessing of mended clothes as a matter of course. Naturally we are not grateful to a marked degree for things that we get on schedule. But let something go wrong at the electric light plant and woe fuss about using candles and exclaim, "I'm certainly thankful they have the wires fixed," when once more the power is restored.

So if you feel that the children are showing ingratitude do not blame them; look for the trouble in the training system. Turn the power off and let them use candles; and you'll be surprised how thankful they'll be for blessings that they are in the habit of receiving with no show of appreciation.—Edith Lockridge Reid.

WILL JAZZ KILL SCHOOL MUSIC?

Inroads of jazz on the American home may mean the expulsion of all music from the public schools, Prof. Reuben Post Halleck declared in an address before a session of the International Kindergarten Union at Louisville.

Jazz music and the intricacies of the English tongue were treated from the school children's viewpoint by the speaker in his address on the "Child's Lexicon."

Prof. Halleck declared that the "child's lexicon is compiled entirely from the child's own experience, and always is consulted to 'translate' facts presented by teachers and books. Any fact not found in this lexicon is as Greek to him."

The fact that children learn only through experiences which appeal to them was stressed by the speaker in stating "that if the school sees the opportunities are given, the child has the joy of watching his lexicon grow in a real and truthful way."

"The pursuit of happiness," one of the most striking phrases in the Declaration of Independence, appears in the early edition made by the child.

"As a result of the relapse toward barbarism" caused by the World War the child has been led to write the word 'jazz' in his lexicon immediately under the 'pursuit of happiness.' This word would never have appeared in the lexicon of a Greek child because the ancient Greeks were as careful concerning the moral quality of the music as of the literature given to their children.

"It seems strange that censorship should be demanded for moving pictures and not for music. The soul is influenced for good or bad through the gateway of the ear as well as through the eye."

"The ancient Greeks realized that music had great influence on the morals, and their educational theory led them to keep the wrong kind of music from their pupils. The United States rightly declines to be an agent in disseminating immorality, and forbids the use of the mails to immoral pictures and literature which make their appeal through the eye."

"Why should it open the mails to that still more dangerous type of jazz music which comes from the harems of the Barbary Coast?"

Outraged homes and churches may demand the exclusion of all music from the public schools, he predicted, and added that it is the duty of parents, teachers and educators to forestall such a movement by demanding that children's music shall be as ennobling as the literature and pictures which already have been provided.

Turning to the teacher's problem, Professor Halleck said that "most teachers act as if the child in some miraculous way speedily gains the knowledge to make an original lexicon, ample for translating whatever he hears or reads."

"Many other teachers make the unwarranted assumption that what they say to a child in English necessarily must be understood. They do not seem to realize that a pupil needs to consult his own lexicon of experience for translating English as much as if it was a foreign tongue."

Crystal Ice Co.

Furnishes Ice made from earth-filtered, distilled water. The word crystal describes the ice frozen from water so clear and pure that with the naked eye you can see through three cakes deep. Ice frozen this way will keep at least twice as long as the white ice; is also more than twice as cold and, of course, will keep articles that much longer and better than it is possible for the white ice to preserve. This is a fact by which our people can see that they get the best and purest ice for less money than they pay for what is termed white ice.

We will have books on sale the last of the week and our delivery will be quick.

We are located in the heart of the city with an ice box and farmers can get ice as they return home from the city. Ice is delivered from under canvass cover so that the outside is as free from dust as the inside.
